Brief Report

Department of Economics organized Departmental Study Tour on Dated 11/02//22 at Bank of India Bharsingi Dist. Nagpur.

Objective of Study Tour at Bank

1. Students will improve their abilities and knowledge on the following topics:
 - How to create a bank account
 - Different Types of Accounts
 - Basic Knowledge of Checks
 - Adapting to Emerging Technologies
2. This event's purpose was to raise awareness among students and educate them on access to financial services (banking), the availability of a variety of forms of service and their characteristics, and to help students comprehend their rights and obligations as consumers of financial services.

General Concept of need of financial literacy

A better understanding of fundamental financial concepts and how to apply them in day-to-day life is one of the primary reasons why people should receive financial education. To have knowledge of the many different financial products available and to have a heightened awareness of the potential threats and rewards associated with our personal finances will allow each of us to make choices that are more in line with our best interests, which will ultimately result in an improvement in our overall financial well-being.

The goal of financial education is to make it possible for students, based on their individual levels of need, to gain an understanding of the role that money plays in their lives, the need and use of savings, the benefits of using the formal financial sector, and the various options available to convert their savings into investments, protection through insurance, and a realistic recognition of the attributes that these options possess. This is the vision of financial education.

About the students interaction and knowledge gaining

Our College Economics Department students of class B.A 1st, 2nd and 3rd year students took part in this departmental field visit at bank of India Brach Bharsingi .

Our College Principal, Dr. Parakah Pawar , had arranged for all of the necessary resources to be made available in order for us to successfully complete the activity. Bus transportation between the College grounds and the bank had been provided for the pupils by the Admin department of our college.

Students were greeted with a kind greeting by the Bank Manager, Mr. Vijay, and his colleagues, Mr. Manoj and Ms. Deepa. Mr. Manoj was in charge of leading the discussion, and he began by providing a concise overview of banking before going on to explain why going to a bank is almost always educational.

Working of the bank:

The operation of the bank is comprised of a large number of distinct divisions, all of which work together to manage the bank's business concerns.

Customers at these counters or windows are required to wait in line until it is their time to be served at one of the specified counters or windows that have been installed in these departments.

There are chairs available for those who come to the bank for work, and there are cabins available for the bank's managers and the general manager.

Mr. Manoj made it a point to ensure that the students had a solid understanding of what banking is and how it can benefit both people and organizations.

Account Opening:

1. New Accounts: This is the department that handles the most new customers out of all of the areas.

In order for a person to create an account at a bank, they will need to fill out the form that was required to be filled out along with the signature of a trusted friend or the kyc (know your customer) papers that were requested by the bank.

The bank provided pupils with a Xerox copy of the form so that they would be aware of the formalities that needed to be completed in order to create an account (the Basic information and KYC page).

2. Cheques Counter

Checkout Counter: This area remained noticeably less crowded than the rest of the store. The processing of demand draughts and cheques occurs at this section of the organization.

When depositing a check, the customer is required to fill out a slip, and the banker is responsible for stamping the slip for the customer's protection.

The students were shown a slip, and Mr. Manoj instructed them on how to fill it out.

3. Withdrawal Counter:

People bring their checks to the withdrawal counter so that they may withdraw money from their accounts. The person who sits at the withdrawal counter typically has a drawer or a bag packed with cash so that he can pass it over to the person who is entitled to it.

4. Lockers:

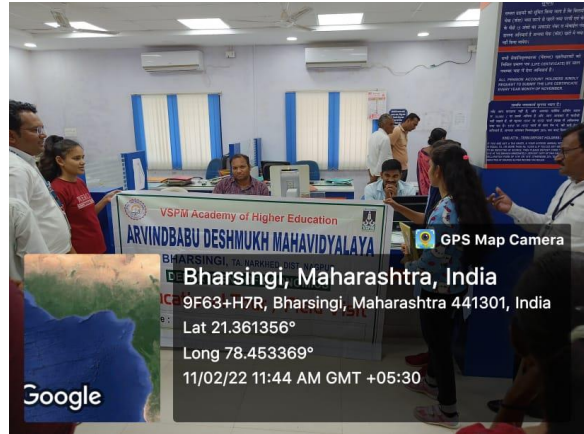

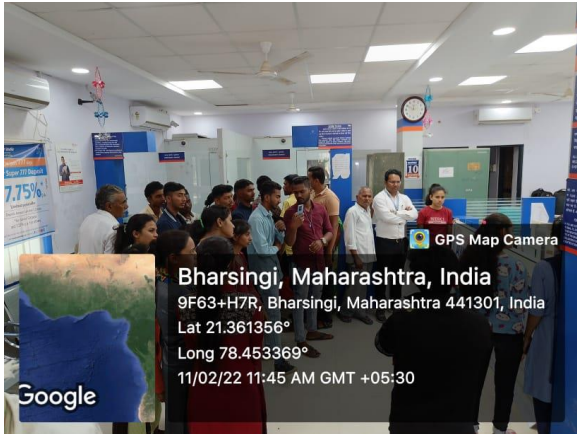

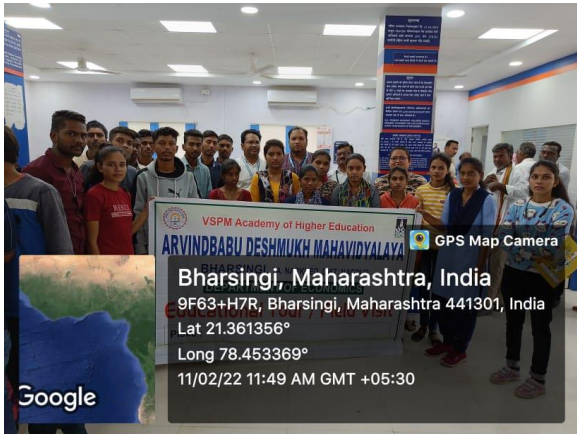

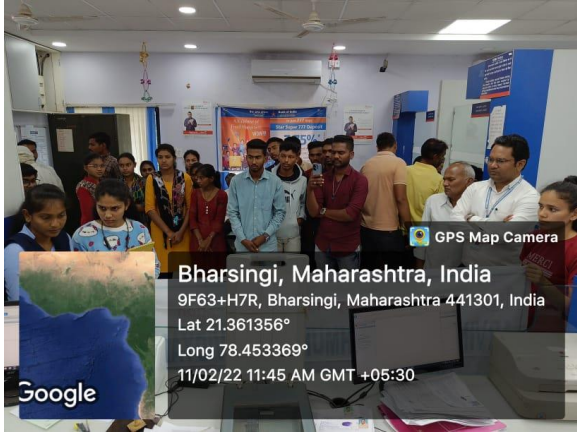

Mr. Manoj led the students to the locker room, which is where the people's assets and other valuables are stored in secure containers. At one locker, which had been sealed by the CBI, a conversation took place between Mr. Manoj and the students, and they were able to clear up all of their questions.
